

BRONX INSURGENTS AMONG DEMOCRATS STIR UP TROUBLE

Machine Chiefs to Find Opposition in Four of Six Assembly Districts.

Following an unsuccessful effort on the part of the cooler headed insurgents to bring harmony to the fighting factions of the Democratic fold in the Bronx at a meeting last night, the contestants went into the fight with renewed vigor, and to-day there are at least 260 separate primary fights scheduled for primary day in Arthur Murphy's discordant Bronx family.

Under the new primary law there is no direct fight on a leader. With the new system the fight for control of an Assembly District is on the various County Committees, and peace reigns in only two of the six Assembly Districts in the new County.

In the Thirty-fourth Assembly District Leader Stephen A. Nugent, who has guided the destinies of the Democrats in that district for many years, is being contested by ex-Assemblyman Patrick J. McMahon, now Executive Clerk of District Attorney Francis Martin's staff. The Thirty-fourth is the largest district in the Bronx. It has seventy-one election districts. Besides this McMahon's contingent is also contesting for the nomination of an Alderman and an Assemblyman. McMahon's choice for Alderman is Frank Weyl and his candidate for the Assembly is Raphael Murphy. Nugent is sticking to the present office-holders, Assemblyman M. Malvin Ferig and Alderman Harry Robitsek.

The Democrats of the Thirty-third will renew the fight begun last year against Leader Michael Garvin. Patrick Kane, who brought the fight into the Supreme Court of the Bronx and was defeated on a recount, will again oppose Garvin. He will also oppose Garvin's selections for the Assembly and the Board of Aldermen, running Jacob Gendert for the Assembly and William C. Reihl for Alderman against Earl Miller and Assemblyman James R. Ferguson.

In the Thirty-second south, where a bitter fight took place last year, another contest is on. This time Leader James F. Garvin, being opposed by ex-Assemblyman Joseph E. Brown, Sidney Levine and Anthony McNally will oppose the renomination of Assemblyman William S. Evans and Edward J. Curley.

The hitherto peaceful Thirty-fifth is embroiled in the warfare this year. Joseph I. Berry is being opposed for the leadership by John Wegman. Wegman has also named a strong opposition to the renomination of Assemblyman Joseph M. Callahan and August Glatensmeyer, C. Y. Palita and P. J. Curley. The Thirty-fifth will be further stirred up by the contest for the Congressional nomination. Former Leader Ellisworth J. Healy, for whom friends have been attempting to secure the nomination, will find half a dozen strong men against him.

In speaking to-day of the Democratic situation in the Bronx, County Executive Healy bears out what we have contended, that the affairs of the Democratic party here are being guided from Fourteenth Street. We have plenty of men in the Bronx capable of steering the Democratic party to success, and we cannot stomach outside interference any longer. The fact that there are 48,000 Democrats in the Bronx, and only 25,000 of that number are brought out to vote, shows the disgust with which the men of the party view the matter. It is time for the independent Democrats to proclaim their independence and put the Democratic Party back where it belongs in this county. We are lined up and certain of victory.

On the other hand a canvas of the organization leaders by The Evening World representative brought forth nothing but expressions of confidence. Nugent claimed he had obtained 6,500 signatures and that McMahon would not succeed in a single election district.

The two organization leaders who seem, so far, to have kept out of the scramble are Thomas O'Neill in the north Thirty-second Assembly District, and Thomas J. Kiernan, the "boy leader" of the north Thirtieth.

CONCEALED IDENTITY, THEN KILLED HIMSELF

The mystery of the disappearance of Francis M. Weaver of No. 41 Fourth Street, Brooklyn, who had been sought throughout the Eastern States since July 31, has been cleared to-day. Weaver was the young man who, under the name of Fred West, killed himself on Sunday with a bullet at the Maple Grove House, Loch Sheldrake, N. Y. The identification was made by means of a snapshot photograph of a group taken on the hotel porch. When it was shown to Weaver's father he pointed out his son.

When young Weaver left home he said he was going to Coney Island, but later on the day of his disappearance he wrote to his mother that he was dependent on account of ill-health and had determined to kill himself.

At the hotel he made the acquaintance of George Adams of No. 418 Forty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, who recognized "West" as one he had known as Weaver. After the suicide Adams took the photograph of the group to Weaver's father, who is a professor in the New York Trade School, and the identification was made.
